College of Nursing

Research > Research and Scholarship Activity

College of Nursing Research Impact 2026: Advancing Knowledge, Improving Healthcare

Al Ain University – College of Nursing

The College of Nursing at Al Ain University continues to strengthen its commitment to research excellence, innovation, and evidence-based healthcare through 16 research publications in 2026, addressing critical challenges in nursing practice, patient safety, mental health, nursing education, and healthcare quality.

These publications reflect extensive research collaboration across the United Arab Emirates, Oman, Jordan, and the wider Arab region, contributing valuable evidence to improve patient outcomes, promote nurses' well-being, and strengthen healthcare systems.

The College's research activities focus on key areas, including:

- Nursing Workforce and Well-being: Exploring occupational stress, burnout, workplace challenges, and nursing care quality.
- Patient and Family Well-being: Investigating psychological health, chronic illness, palliative care, and quality of life.
- Patient Safety and Quality of Care: Promoting infection prevention, safe nursing practices, and improved care environments.
- Nursing Education and Professional Development: Strengthening clinical competency, student well-being, and caring behaviors.
- Mental Health and Psychological Support: Addressing psychological challenges affecting patients, healthcare professionals, and communities.
- Disaster Preparedness and Vulnerable Populations: Advancing healthcare professionals' competencies and resilience in challenging healthcare situations.

International Research Recognition

Adding to the College's research achievements, Professor Loai Abu Sharour has been recognized among the world's Top 2% researchers and ranked among the Top 1,000 researchers worldwide in 2026, highlighting his scholarly contributions and international research visibility.

Research for a Healthier Tomorrow

Through high-quality publications, regional and international collaborations, and research addressing real-world healthcare challenges, the College of Nursing remains committed to translating scientific knowledge into meaningful improvements in nursing education, clinical practice, healthcare policy, and community well-being.

Research • Knowledge • Innovation • Impact

College of Nursing – Al Ain University
Advancing Nursing Excellence for Healthier Communities

View Page